

such a wonderful place to live, work, and raise families.

Originally known as Pondtown Plantation, Winthrop was home to the Abenaki, who thrived along its many lakes and ponds. Those same lakes and ponds would propel Winthrop throughout history, including the historic Winthrop Mills Company's woolen textile mill, and serve as a beautiful backdrop for recreation.

Winthrop's roots run deep into American history. BG Henry Clay Wood, who played a key role in the Battle of Wilson's Creek in Missouri during the Civil War, was born in Winthrop. The philanthropist Charles M. Bailey was also a resident of Winthrop and was very generous to the town, adding to its rich history. Mr. Bailey donated the historic Bailey Public Library, constructed in 1916.

Winthrop is also home to the Cobbesee Lighthouse. When it was constructed in 1908, it was the only inland lighthouse east of the Mississippi.

Maine is known as Vacationland, and Winthrop fits perfectly into that picture. With all of the beautiful ponds and lakes, as well as the 807-foot Mount Pisgah, there is always something to do in Winthrop. The energy and planning going into the town's 250th anniversary celebration demonstrates the pride the townspeople have in their town.

Mr. President, Winthrop's 250th year is a time to celebrate the people who, for longer than America has been a nation, have pulled together, cared for one another, and built a great community. It is a pleasure to offer my congratulations and best wishes.

REMEMBERING HALBERT SULLIVAN

• Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President, I am saddened by the passing of Hal Sullivan. He had a unique ability to bring together organizations and private sector partners to make sure clients of the Fathers & Families Support Center had the tools they needed to be successful. I appreciated learning what he was seeing and hearing, and hearing his advice over the years. His work touched the lives of so many families throughout the St. Louis region, and his legacy of service will have a lasting impact throughout our State for generations to come.●
